

16 DAYS OF ACTIVISM

against
GENDER-BASED VIOLENCE

November 25 - December 10, 2017

“Leave No One Behind - End Violence against Women and Girls”

16 Days of Activism against Gender-based Violence

Theme: Leave No One Behind-End Violence against Women and Girls!

The 16 Days of Activism against Gender Violence is an international campaign originating from the first Women's Global Leadership Institute in 1991 sponsored by the Centre for Women's Global Leadership. Participants chose the dates, November 25, International Day against Violence against Women and December 10, International Human Rights Day, in order to symbolically link violence against women and human rights and to emphasize that such violence is a violation of human rights. This 16-day period also highlights other significant dates including December 1, World AIDS Day.

The 16' Day Campaign has been used as an organizing strategy by individuals and groups around the world to galvanize support to eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls by: raising awareness about gender-based violence as a human rights issue at the local, national, regional and international levels, strengthening local work around violence against women, establishing a clear link between local and international work to end gender-based violence; especially violence against women, providing a forum in which organizers can develop and share new and effective strategies, demonstrating the solidarity of women around the world organizing against violence against women and creating tools to pressure governments to implement promises made to eliminate violence against women.

The UN Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women (1993) defines violence against women and girls as "Any act of gender-based violence that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or in private life".

Gender Based Violence (GBV) can also be defined as: Acts of physical, mental or social abuse (including sexual violence) that is attempted or threatened, with some type of force (such as violence, threats, coercion, manipulation, deception, cultural expectations, weapons or economic circumstances) and is directed against a person because of his or her gender roles and expectations in a society or culture..

With global estimates that up to six out of 10 women will experience physical or sexual violence in her lifetime. Violence against women remains one of the most widespread human rights violations yet, one of the least prosecuted crimes.

This year marks the 22nd anniversary of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, the most progressive road map to gender equality. World leaders met in March 2015 at the United Nations 59th Commission on the Status of Women and a few months later in September at the 70th General Assembly to take stock of the progress made and recommitted themselves to take meaningful action to close the gaps that are holding women and girls back. A new Sustainable Development agenda, which scales up the Millennium Development Goals for the first time includes specific targets and indicators on ending violence against women and girls.

In Belize, government and several non-government agencies have strengthened the multisectoral approach to addressing Gender-Based Violence with new tools such as a National Gender-Based Violence Plan of Action 2017-2020, which builds on the gains of the 2013 plan, along with functioning District Gender-Based Violence Committees countrywide which coordinate the response to GBV at the district level and report to a National Committee whose secretariat is now the National Women's Commission (NWC), in the Ministry of Human Development, Social Transformation and Poverty Alleviation.
